Air Force ROTC

High School Scholarship Program (HSSP)

Schools & Majors

- AF ROTC is offered at over 1,100 colleges & universities
 - Be sure schools you select accept you in academic majors you indicate on application
 - i.e. to use an electrical engineering scholarship, you must be admitted into an AF-approved electrical engineering program at college or university with an AF ROTC program
 - On website can browse majors offered at various colleges with ROTC program
- Scholarships in all academic majors necessary to meet AF needs
 - Varies year to year
- Carefully consider majors you put on application (can list up to three)
 - Applicants encouraged apply & pursue technical & foreign language majors (critical to the Air Force's mission)
 - Most highly desired majors = electrical & computer engineering, meteorology, nuclear physics & engineering
 - Applicants selecting these majors might receive priority in the scholarship selection process.
 - Technical scholarship offers are awarded at a rate of approximately 70%
 - 30% foreign language majors and non-technical majors
 - Only list majors willing to pursue
- If selected, AF ROTC will notify of scholarship type & major of offer
 - Accept or decline

Important Dates

- 1 Jun (thru 1 Dec). High School AF ROTC scholarship online application open
 - Calendar year PRIOR to your graduation
- 8 Sept: Early Scholarship Board
 - Must meet all HSSP eligibility requirements
 - Complete online application questionnaire
 - Submit all required documents
 - Complete interview with local AFROTC detachment
 - Interview report received by HQ AFROTC NLT 0900 CST, 8 Sept
- 1 Dec: Last day for high school students to apply for scholarship
- 12 Jan: Final date to submit all required forms
 - Counselor certification/Transcript (9-11th grades)
 - Extracurricular activity sheet
 - Interview: most interested in your specific accomplishments that demonstrate leadership and officer potential rather than merely listing achievements or activities you've participated in. We want to know how your leadership has affected the organization, teams and projects you worked on.
 - Physical Fitness Assessment
 - SAT/ACT score
 - GPA

Interview

- Once submitted all forms & met all qualifications
- Local AFROTC detachment will contact you to schedule with AF Officer
- Most critical aspect of selection process (eyes on assessment)
 - 60-90 minutes
 - Advised to bring LOR from SASI
 - The interview is used to assess officership and leadership potential by discerning alignment of student's values with Air Force character/core values, self-confidence, human relations predisposition, planning and organizing ability, communication skills, leadership ability, motivation toward the Air Force, demonstrated ability to get things done and to be successful, assessment of the applicants ability to control situations with their presence and speaking ability, assessment of how well the applicant will fit into the Air Force and military lifestyle, and level of physical fitness.
 - Achievement in extracurricular activities (vice mere participation) is a key indicator of leadership and officer potential. Extracurricular activities include athletics, academic, civic organizations, student government, employment, etc.
 - ONLY take into consideration what the applicant has accomplished between 9th 11th grades. DO NOT INCLUDE anything done in the applicant's senior year. The rationale for this is that we may have applicants who are eligible in August and some might not be eligible until January. Leaving out their senior year ensures everyone is on a level playing field.

- After interview uses AF Form 4060 using 5-point scale in 7 areas that are important for success as AF officer
 - Character/Core Values
 - Self Confidence
 - Human Relations
 - Planning and Organizing
 - Communicative Skills
 - Leadership
 - Motivation Toward the Air Force
- Synthesize answers to question and overall sense of applicant to provide 8 bullets to comm with board
 - Bullet #1: Your overall recommendation for this applicant. This is based on the sum of the applicant's responses to the questions posed, the manner in which the applicant conducted themselves during the interview, your experience as AFROTC Cadre or Admissions Liaison Officer, and your experience as an Air Force officer. Lastly, you must ask yourself how strongly you recommend the board award this applicant a scholarship.
 - Bullets #2 & 3: Your assessment of the applicant's demonstrated ability with examples to accomplish a meaningful task or goal. The applicant's responses to the "Planning and Organizing" and "Character/Core Values" areas (above) should form these bullets. Applicants who are skilled in this area are driven to accomplish assigned tasks or goals to the best of their abilities. They are often described as responsible, dependable, ethical professionals, who have an exceptional work ethic. They are good planners, for whom initiative is a strong suit; they have an intrinsic need to achieve. The focus of these bullets is on doing what it takes to get something done. Advised to bring LOR from SASI
 - Bullets # 4 & 5: Your assessment of the applicant's demonstrated ability—with examples— to lead. The applicant's responses to the "Leadership," "Human Relations," and "Communication Skills" areas (above) should form these bullets. Applicants who are skilled leaders can cite several examples of instances where they have influenced and/or directed others to accomplish a task. They will be able to describe task that needed to be done, how they worked through others to take the action needed to get it done, and the impact of accomplishing the task. The focus of these bullets is on influencing others to get something done.
 - Bullet #6: Your assessment of the applicant's bearing/presence and verbal communication skills. The applicant's answers to the "Self-Confidence" and "Communicative Skills" areas (above) should form this bullet. Applicants skilled in this area will—by virtue of how they hold themselves, maintain eye contact, interact with, and speak to the interviewer all while demonstrating confidence and advanced social skills. They will be comfortable with the interviewer, be judged assertively and competitively, and seem to be high-energy optimists. You will not have to pull answers out of them. They are not wall-flowers.
 - Bullet #7: How well you think the applicant will fit into AFROTC and the Air Force. Can you envision the applicant in an Air Force uniform, embracing Air Force values, willing to cede the individual liberty required of a military professional? The applicant's answers to the "Character/Core Values," "Human Relations," and "Motivation Toward the Air Force" areas (above) should form this bullet.
 - Bullet #8: Your sense of the fitness-level and professional appearance of the applicant. If the applicant is overweight, please indicate if they are inshape (i.e.: muscular athlete) or out of shape (i.e.: judging by appearance, does not meet body fat standard). If the applicant had a waiver for the Physical Fitness Assessment, please indicate what prevented them from taking the assessment (i.e.: PFA waived due to sprained ankle, but highly fit track star) and also indicate if you think they will meet weight standards in that area too. If the applicant failed one or more components, you must address it and indicate what the applicant is doing to improve in that area. This is a tremendous help to the board members.
